

To howl against Wilson is to rock against prosperity for all the people.

The Democratic party is the party which does the right thing for all the people.

Our Republican friends during all the years they were in power legitimated for the few to take unjustly from the many.

Of all the Don Quixotic acts of the Republican party the nomination of Teddy for President—or even permitting him in any way to dictate the nomination—will cap the climax.

If the Republicans and Progressives get together at Chicago their platform can be written in four words, regardless of how many words the said combination platform may contain and these words are: "Anything to beat Wilson" and to this should be added—the same words: "Something to destroy Democracy, Peace and Prosperity."

Compare the records of Democracy with the records of our Republican Friends. The Federal Reserve Law alone has been of greater good to the people of the United States than all the legislation under Republican rule. Had we been under the old system when the War Clouds began to hover over Europe, Panic would have overwhelmed America carrying down all prosperity and instead of being prosperous people we would be in the midst of the greatest panic in the history of the world.

ABOUT THE CHURCHES

Interesting News Concerning the Different Denominations.

This Column Closes Promptly at 9 A. M. Each Wednesday.

PRESBYTERIAN

Regular services next Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sunday School at 9:45 a. m. Christian Endeavor at 6:30 p. m. Prayer meeting every Wednesday evening at 7:30.

The public cordially invited to all services.

CHRISTIAN

Bible School 9:45 a. m. Preaching 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Boys Club at 6:30 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p. m.

Next Sunday morning we will celebrate the completion of the five years ministry of its present pastor. We want every member present. We will have the communion service before the sermon and we want every member present at the communion service. After that service reports from each dement of our church work will be presented and we believe that those reports will be well worth hearing and they will be very encouraging.

The public is cordially invited to be present at all of the Sunday services.

W. Garnet Alcorn, Pastor

FIRST BAPTIST

We had a good day last Sunday.

There were a goodly number of visitors and we had some delightful music at each service. We have the promise of some special music next Sunday. We are getting ready for our "Every member canvas" on Sunday afternoon June 18th. We hope to find every member at home that afternoon. It means much to have the sympathy and cooperation of every member of our Church. We shall have our regular services next Sunday. Sunday School is at 9:45 a. m. I have spoken to some of our boys about the Base Ball League, and they said "Of course we shall organize team." Let every boy who is interested and wants to see a goodie in the First Baptist Sunday School be present next Sunday. Our preaching services are at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. The B. Y. F. will meet at 6:30 p. m. Miss Nellie Jett will lead the meeting. The Subject is "The will and the way." The Scripture lesson is Phil. 4:11. We give the public a most cordial invitation to worship with us.

METHODIST

We had another good day Sunday, 182 in S. S. and large congregations at the preaching services.

This regular attendance in the S. S. and upon the church services show a fine interest of the people in work; it is encouraging, and it has made this showing in the rain and mud, what might have done if the weather had been good! Next Sunday I will be here, and I do not know that I will be able to get anyone to fill my pulpit—preacher or reader has to go these days, so you can visit other meetings. The S. S. and League girls have been very to be seen at other meetings and preaching services. The Boys League girls started on their Sunday School at 11 a. m. six weeks ago and are doing the interesting time. You will be glad to hear that last year was some interest going on when the White and Yellow 104 members are equal, and there will be some great programs lined off. The boys' contest will be eliminated at 11 a. m. Come up ye forces! The time is now. The captain has planned the organization. C. J.

Miss Silverman visits our friends the last of the month.

notes of graft, and caused a revision of sentiment. Men who had assailed the dead district attorney as a fanatic and a hysterical demagogue for his great speech attacking graft had to admit that there had been some basis for his sensational accusations. But these same men were afraid to move. So it had been easy for Bruce to secure the reform nomination for district attorney. No one else wanted it. The graft syndicate had made it too plain that perk as well as honor went with the office.

Bruce was making a splendid campaign against the forces of graft. At the lower, vicious elements of the city were arrayed against him. From the dives, the gambling houses, the houses of the drug sellers and the men and women who lived on vice and debauchery, on crime and lawlessness, the forces of evil sent out their henchmen. But Bruce, viewing all this with his father's martyrdom in his mind, set resolution not only to avenge the dead man but at whatever cost he had to continue to fight against all the forces that were enemies of justice and the common welfare of the nation and in reverse he was to be tremendous.

He had an effective speech, but the ringing address did not move the masses to his cause.

James Mayfield had opposed his son in the campaign, and he turned to his wife, Dorothy, for help. Dorothy was a woman of great beauty, and she was much interested in her husband's political career. She was a suffragette, and she could array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the city on his side.

"Women can't vote," she said in a speech she made to a suffrage organization, "but they can influence the men who can. Let every woman belong to the polls with some man and see that they are right—for Laramore and wrong against graft and corruption."

The ranks of women took up that cry and the graft organization, which had expected to win over when it had come to Laramore, began to be informed and to see that it had run into a trap. The women had organized and made themselves strong since it was impossible for him to take the time for his wedding during the campaign. And Dorothy, herself, an ardent advocate of woman suffrage, did all she could to array the women of the